

THE ASTROLOGER.

"Indica mihi si nosti omnia. Sciebas quod nasciturus esses, et numerum dierum tuorum noveras?"—Job xxxviii.

He is seen in his study, looking attentively at a suspended sphere. Death holds out a skull to him, and seems, in mockery, to say, "Here is a better subject for your contemplation."