

Fragment of a parchment manuscript with a large, irregular hole. The text is written in a medieval script, likely Gothic or similar, and is mostly illegible due to the damage. The parchment is stained and discolored, with some areas appearing lighter and others darker. The hole is roughly diamond-shaped with jagged edges. There are three small, rectangular fragments of parchment protruding from the right side of the hole, which appear to be remnants of text or perhaps small illustrations. The overall appearance is that of an ancient, well-used and damaged document.

Fragment of a parchment manuscript, likely a page from a book. The text is written in a medieval script, possibly Gothic or similar, and is mostly illegible due to the damage and fading. The parchment is stained and discolored, with some areas appearing lighter and others darker. The text is arranged in several lines, but the individual words and characters are difficult to discern. The overall appearance is that of an ancient, well-used and damaged document.

